

QUALITY TIP

Is it OK to just list the names of industry people who were consulted in the development of the TAS?

You need to be able to show that there has been consultation with industry in the development of the TAS.

This should include more than a list of names. It should include details of what was discussed and the organisations the individuals belong to. It may include just a list of names IF, AND ONLY IF, there is a reference to a document where additional information about the type of consultation can be found.

Do I need to get my TAS signed by industry?

The Training Accreditation Council does not require a TAS to be signed by Industry.

This is something that historically we have used to help us demonstrate that we have involved industry in the development of our learning and assessment strategies and programs.

Your evidence of industry consultation should be detailed and include information about who was consulted (individuals and organisations) and the type of consultation that occurred. A signature from an industry representative is not required.
